MORAL PANICS IN AUSTRALIA

Was Cronulla a moral panic? Or just a blip on a continuum of media and politically manipulated terror panic? How relevant is Stan Cohen's concept of moral panic in the 21st century?

Editors Scott Poynting, co-author of Kebabs, kids, cops and crime and Bin Laden in the suburbs: Criminalising the Arab other, and George Morgan, author of Unsettled places: Aboriginal people and urbanisation in New South Wales, bring together a group of experts whose analysis of a wide range of case studies reveals that the lessons we may learn from this history of moral panics could be invaluable.

From media-driven moral outrage about larrikins and gang rape in the 1890s to recent panics about 'ethnic' youth gangs, from police beatings during the Great Depression to the recent riots at Macquarie Fields, this collection reveals that the more moral panics stay the same, the more they change.
